

TRIENNIAL CONFERENCES

The IAUP celebrates its general assembly every three years in a different part of the world. Each triennial focuses on a specific theme and provides its membership with an opportunity to discuss challenges and changes that face higher education worldwide. Traditionally, these triennials have been addressed by world leaders from outside academia and heads of state.

The International Association of University Presidents (IAUP), which held its foundational Triennial Conference in 1965 at Wroxton Abbey, Banbury, England, is an association of university chief executive officers – presidents, rectors, vice chancellors, and chancellors – from higher education institutions around the world. It is a recognized charity (non-profit) in the United Kingdom.

IAUP is free of political and partisan interests. Its primary purpose is to strengthen the international mission and quality of higher education around the world. IAUP offers a regular forum for higher education leaders and institutions to identify and discuss in a global and cross-cultural context the major issues and challenges facing higher education today. It is also an association committed to serving its members and the institutions they lead.

Separately, each university leader has the ability to shape his or her own institution; collectively, IAUP has the ability to shape the entire landscape of higher education worldwide. Member presidents, rectors, vice chancellors and chancellors enjoy access to a worldwide network of their peers and the ability to obtain IAUP sponsorship for individual initiatives.

The purposes of the association are:

- To provide a worldwide vision of higher education.
- To strengthen the international mission of institutions throughout the world.
- To promote academic exchange and collaboration.
- To make every effort so that the voice of educational leaders is heard.
- To promote networking and collaboration between leaders of universities, supporting sustainable development in a context of global competency.
- To promote peace and international understanding through education.

ACTIVITIES OF THE IAUP

IAUP Semi-Annual Meetings

The IAUP meets each year in international locations that include meetings of the IAUP Executive Committee (which all IAUP members may attend as observers), meetings of IAUP special interest groups, commissions, and taskforces (which all IAUP members may attend as participants), and the IAUP Advisory Council.

IAUP Regional Councils

Working closely with the IAUP Secretary General, and under the leadership of the IAUP President, IAUP Regional Councils volunteer to represent IAUP in their home region and take a leadership role in the region as advocates for higher education. A list of the current Regional Councils, and their chairs, can be found at the IAUP website at www.iaup.org/leadership/leadership-structure.

IAUP/UN Commission on Disarmament Education, Conflict Resolution and Peace

IAUP is the only external organization to manage a joint commission with the United Nations. Commission delegates are appointed by the IAUP President, in consultation with the commission co-chairs. IAUP was instrumental in creating the Year of Peace at the UN and is recognized annually at the UN Day of Peace activities.

IAUP/CAEL 21st Century Skills Commission

The IAUP is partnering with the Council for Adult and Experiential Learning (CAEL) to advance a worldwide degree completion agenda that recognizes university-level learning acquired outside the traditional classroom for credit towards post-secondary degree attainment, and life learning portfolios as a vehicle to document meaningful learning acquired across an individual's life path.

UN Academic Impact

IAUP is the lead partner organization with the United Nations in creating its Academic Impact initiative [<http://academicimpact.org>]. Leadership opportunities continue to exist for IAUP members in managing this global initiative of educational institutions.

International Education Faculty Achievement Award

Each year IAUP recognizes faculty who make significant contributions in curriculum development for world citizenship and who prepare students for successful careers in our global economy. Each member president of IAUP may annually nominate one faculty member from his or her university for a certificate of acknowledgement that is signed by IAUP's President and the member university president making the nomination.

ACADEME: Journal of Leadership and Management in Higher Education

ACADEME is an international, professionally refereed, scholarly journal that embraces theory, research, analysis, history, philosophy, policy and best practices. ACADEME is published at Siam University, Bangkok, Thailand. The editorial board may be reached by e-mail at yhing@siam.edu.

UNESCO Interaction

IAUP is an accredited NGO with the UN Educational, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) in Paris. IAUP members have the opportunity to participate in activities carried out through the Division of Higher Education as well as present proposals for funding, through the Participation Program of UNESCO, especially to assist higher education institutions in developing countries.

High-Level Representation to the United Nations

IAUP is a non-governmental organization holding consultative status with the United Nations through the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC). With that distinction, member-presidents are eligible to attend high-level conferences and events at UN Headquarters in New York, Geneva, and Vienna, and may be called upon by the IAUP President to represent the organization at policy- and agenda-setting meetings within the UN system.

Membership in CoNGO

IAUP is a full member of the Conference of Non-Governmental Organizations in Consultative Relations with the United Nations (CoNGO). The IAUP President may appoint member-presidents to NGO committees in New York, Geneva, and Vienna on substantive matters such as education, human rights, social development, and global health.

IIE/IAUP Partnership on promoting Student Exchange

IAUP is promoting student participation in a significant manner, offering them the opportunity to participate in Triennial Conferences and now, through this IIE/IAUP partnership, students will be encouraged to actively engage in student exchange activities throughout the world to prepare them better to become true global citizens.

IAUP Leadership Positions

There are on-going opportunities for member-presidents to serve in leadership roles as members of the IAUP Executive Committee, regional chair, or task force members. IAUP is the Global Voice of Higher Education, and the IAUP leadership has the ability to channel that voice and serve as its spokesperson.

Presidential Updates

IAUP members receive periodic updates on issues and forums of interest to chief executive officers in higher education. Members have access to a global online network of peers and access to IAUP's global network of information that is comprehensive and of clear interest to the chief executive officers of higher education worldwide.
