INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS

Byelaws

These Byelaws are made pursuant to Article 17.10 of the Articles of Association (the ‘Articles’) of the International Association of University Presidents (the ‘Charity’).

Preface

The International Association of University Presidents was founded in 1964, as an unincorporated association of the Heads of Universities (Presidents, Rectors, Vice-Chancellors) throughout the world. As a new century unfolded, this association decided to revise and reformulate its structure by incorporating the Charity to be a permanent establishment from which to carry forward its work.

These Byelaws, taken together with the Articles under which they are made, together reflect the substance of the 2008 charter of the unincorporated association, insofar as they are consistent with English law so far as it applies to charities.

From the unique perspective of its worldwide membership, its major Triennial Conferences held in a different continent every three years, its collaboration with world and international organisations, particularly with UNESCO, its co-operation with other major university and higher education organisations, the Charity now acknowledges:

• that universities are being called upon to respond to even greater and changing demands from all sectors of society, as science and technology increasingly pervades all aspects of personal, social and commercial life, in an era of new technologies;

• that universities, as scientific and educational institutions, have become indispensable in modern, knowledge-based societies, where social wealth is more closely based upon the educational level of the citizens than upon other factors;

• that, in responding to the challenges and opportunities of the new century, it will be vitally important for universities to fully appreciate that the university culture is one of the most powerful resources to draw upon; and

• that universities must sustain and foster that unique culture embracing the human values of scientific competence and scientific attitude, freedom of debate and independent judgement and social service.
At this important stage in its development, therefore, the Board of Directors Charity - building on the many years of valuable experience of the association in international university developments, committed to the promotion of peace and mutual understanding, tolerance and respect between peoples, inspired by the significant contributions of its members to the promotion of quality at all levels of university life, and now organised to capitalize on the unprecedented challenges and opportunities facing university leaders throughout the world – agrees the following Byelaws.

1. The Charity’s Mission, Aims and Approach

The Charity’s purposes are set out in Article 3 of the Articles as follows:

*The Objects of the Charity (the Objects) are for the public benefit:*

1. The primordial mission of the Charity is, with the aim of achieving the Objects, to support university Presidents, Rectors, Vice-Chancellors and university leaders in general, in their strategic efforts to enhance the qualitative development of their institutions and their modern university culture, thereby enhancing and extending the international role and contribution of universities in a rapidly changing environment.

1.2 The specific aims of the Charity are:

(a) to provide a well informed forum for university leaders throughout the world;

(b) to continue to increase the exchange of experiences, levels of collaboration and networking between university leaders; and
(c) to promote co-operation and reciprocation of memberships with university and inter-university related organisations, particularly at supranational and regional levels, as deemed appropriate by the Charity in the pursuit of its aims and objectives.

1.3 In pursuing its Objects the Charity, shall:

(a) be independent of all ideological and political interests.

(b) foster global co-operation as well as cultural diversity and social cohesions at all levels (worldwide, regional, national, sub-national and local).

(c) contribute to international dialogue, tolerance and understanding in the promotion of international justice, co-operation and peace.

(d) actively support the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and the global efforts of the United Nations and its specific agencies, in particular UNESCO.

(e) continue – as an effective world-wide organisation – to give positive and creative support to its members, by providing an active global network and forum specifically for the Heads of Universities worldwide through which they can:

1. enhance and extend their role in university and social developments - a role that is increasingly important because modern universities need effective leadership to respond promptly with vision, within autonomous institutions, to the needs of rapidly changing, socio-economic and technical conditions, while at the same time developing the university culture;

2. share their valuable experiences and the outcomes of good practice;

3. draw on the successful achievements of their colleagues;

4. collaborate in various university networking projects;

5. contribute towards the development of universities in economically deprived regions throughout the world;

6. respond to the need to widen access to university for students from disadvantaged backgrounds;

7. help to introduce new qualitative developments in the wider university sector;

8. extend and enhance the international dimension of their universities; and ensure that, with the rapid growth of globalisation, universities will continue to support and reinforce cultural diversities, so vital for sustaining the development of personal identities, social cohesion and human creativity thereby further enriching the overall quality of the universal university culture.

Pursuant to Article 10.3 of the Articles of the Charity, the Board of Directors may establish categories of membership additional to the General Assembly Members provided that members of such categories of membership shall not be members of the Charity for company law purposes. The following additional categories are hereby established:

4. set the conditions for the granting of Awards on behalf of the Charity.

3.4 Payment of membership fees

No class of membership other than Honorary Membership and Reciprocal Membership is effective until the prospective member has paid the relevant membership fee.

4. Structure of the Charity

4.1 The Charity is a company limited by guarantee incorporated in England and Wales and registered as a charity with the Charity Commission for England and Wales.

4.2 As a worldwide organisation, the Charity needs a well structured decision-making process to organise and conduct its affairs in a most efficient and expeditious manner. This is achieved by the close and coherent synchronisation of the principal organs of the Charity i.e. the General Assembly, the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee and the Presidency, as set out further below in Byelaws 5-8.

4.3 For the purposes of company law, the President is one of the corpus of Directors who together have joint responsibility for the management of the affairs of the Charity. However, the President has a special role leading the Board of Directors as further set out below.

4.4 The General Assembly elects the President-Elect of the Charity at a Triennial Conference under Article 15.3 of the Articles. The new President, in his/ her acceptance speech, shall propose a three-year programme of the Charity, and indicate the various strategies recommended for the realisation of that programme. At the first meeting of the Board of Directors following the Triennial Conference, the President's proposed programme is considered and approved.

4.5 In the period between the three-yearly meetings of the General Assembly, the Charity looks to the dedicated commitment of the President's leadership, combined with the contributions of the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee and the support of the Presidency, to achieve the overall objectives of the Charity, in line with the decisions taken at the previous General Assembly Meeting.

4.6 The Charity's three-yearly agenda, therefore, is driven by the President, with the full engagement of the Board of Directors and a broadly representative Executive Committee, and a resourceful Presidency and administrative secretariat ('Secretariat'), managed by the Secretary-General.

5. Principal responsibilities of the General Assembly

6. Board of Directors

6.1 The Board of Directors is legally responsible for the management of the Charity and is the subject of Articles 15-17 of the Charity’s Articles. For the avoidance of any doubt, the Board of Directors is comprised of ten persons: the President, Secretary-General and Treasurer from the current, immediate past and newly elected officers, as well as the tenth Director ex-officio, the Dean of Wroxton College of Fairleigh Dickinson University, who is and shall be a resident of the UK.

Those Directors will act by representation or delegation, through a Power of Attorney, from the President / Rector / Vice Chancellor of their university. Those Powers of Attorney must be submitted to the Board by candidates to Directors of the Board and be available to all members of the Board prior to any vote by the Board concerning those candidates.
